MARCHI MOBILE

The eleMMent Palazzo Superior is described as a private and business jet on wheels – and the truth is not far off. With its administration office in Vienna and production in Dortmund, Marchi has nailed the art of luxury travel; the perfect balance of Austrian design and German efficiency.

And the Superior is its top-of-the-line model, combining design features from the worlds of motor-sport, aviation and yachting. The cab was manufactured using high-performance carbon fibre materials and its sports car design lines, and 36-inch rim covers, resemble those of a race car.

The cockpit features a central digital instrumentation and MMI control, inspired by jet cockpits, but functions like a luxury limousine. The panoramic, helicopter-like windshield can be darkened in two stages using an adjustable sun protection system.

The body construction emphasises the strong design statement of the eleMMent series while also offering outstanding functionality and comfort. Its self-supporting and incredibly robust structure with a 60+ mm wall thickness provides outstanding stability and an insulation rating comparable to expedition vehicles operated on extreme off-road terrains.

However, the design lines remain elegant with integrated yacht windows and fine chrome trim to include indirect lighting.

The Sky Lounge is reserved for the owner's outstanding panoramic views, with an automatic lift system which raises it up out of the body to create a walled-in roof deck.

An exterior stairwell leads up to the spacious deck with integrated lounge furniture and radiant floor heating.

A specially developed air convection system ensures a comfortable interior temperature and prevents excess pressurisation when sliding out the full-wall room extensions. Different temperature ▶ zones can be programmed and a continuous air circulation system ensures the best air quality at all times.

The floor plan has created a living space that provides maximum comfort for owners and guests with a four-meter couch within reach of a bar, a wine cabinet and an icemaker. The open kitchenette adds to the spacious interior atmosphere.

The bathroom is discreetly separated from the living room, and master bedroom and can be entered from either without seeming like a passageway between the two rooms. The large master bedroom features a king-size bed, manufactured by the same company that supplies beds to the British Royal Family, with fine Italian bed linen.

An adjoining spa area provides a private retreat for the owners and features a 1.5sqm. glazed rainfall shower.

PREVOST

For the Barack Obama administration to cross the Canadian border to source the President's Ground Force One, it must be special. And it is.

Quebec-based specialist motorhome firm, Prevost was founded in 1924 and it claims 'heritage is more than history'. It's a legacy of values that are passed along from one generation of Prevost people to the next; from its birthplace in Sainte Claire to the multiple facilities it operates; and to each of its converter partners; one of which is Volvo.

The business' values are simple: 'an uncompromising commitment to quality, a drive for constant innovation and improvement, and dedication to safety and sustainability in every aspect of its business. Its heritage is crafting the finest motorhomes in the world for those who appreciate the value of a solid foundation.'

Founder Eugène Prévost, a cabinet maker specialising in church pews and school furniture was asked to build a custom bus body for a new truck chassis, which he built around a wooden frame until 1945 when the bodies started being made of metal. The H3-45 VIP is a quiet, luxurious ride with fantastic visibility, an independent suspension system and custom conversion space. A unique power management system increases battery life and an Electronic Stability Program provides improved stability in adverse conditions. The environmentally friendly Volvo D13 engine exceeds EPA emission regulations for clean air and fuel economy. Owner groups actively rally at the most prestigious resorts in North America with the common bond of having pride in owning a Prevost motorhome.

Everything is meticulously executed, such as optimal light and temperature control, generous space (storage and cargo space). Customer lounges offer amenities, overnight parking, electrical and water hookups and other convenient services so owners can turn downtime into productive time.

The H3-45 VIP comes with a comprehensive 24-month bumper-to-bumper insurance.
